Introduction – The people of Hyperborea

The mythical people of Hyperborea are surrounded by a veil of mystery and legends. According to ancient accounts, Hyperborea was an idyllic land located beyond the known lands, in the northernmost reaches of the planet. The inhabitants of Hyperborea were considered a people of exceptional wisdom and beauty, endowed with superior knowledge and a profound harmony with nature.

In tales and myths, the people of Hyperborea were described as immortal or enjoying extraordinary longevity. They lived in magnificent and prosperous cities, bathed in eternal light. Their way of life was imbued with peace, serenity, and respect for all living beings.

The inhabitants of Hyperborea were regarded as the guardians of ancient knowledge and the secrets of the universe. They were renowned for their wisdom, mastery of the arts and sciences, and their ability to connect with higher dimensions of consciousness. It was said that they had access to mystical powers and could manipulate the forces of nature.

Despite their geographical isolation, the Hyperboreans maintained close ties with other civilizations and embarked on spiritual journeys to share their wisdom and learn from other cultures. They were perceived as spiritual guides and teachers to neighboring peoples, imparting their esoteric knowledge and holistic vision of the world.

However, Hyperborea is also surrounded by contradictory myths and uncertainties. Some accounts suggest that the land of Hyperborea was inaccessible to mortals and reserved for a spiritual elite. Other legends speak of its mysterious disappearance, sometimes attributed to natural disasters or a voluntary retreat of the Hyperboreans into other dimensions.

Whatever the historical truth, Hyperborea has become a symbol of a lost golden age, an ideal of peace, knowledge, and harmony with nature. In the collective imagination, the mythical people of Hyperborea continue to inspire spiritual quests, dreams of an ideal society, and aspirations for a deep connection with our world and beyond.

Chapter 1 - Vladimir Putin

Once upon a time, in the vast lands of Russia, there was a powerful and enigmatic man named Vladimir Putin. He ruled his country with an iron fist, but his heart was thirsty for new discoveries, innovations, and social justice.

One day, as his numerous teams were scouring the depths of the Internet, they stumbled upon an extraordinary concept. It was the concept of LE PAPILLON SOURCE, a consortium of educational agro-climatic tourist cities and self-managed experimental plant complexes that the founder, a French national unknown, planned to deploy around the world, starting with France, Morocco, and the heart of the Congo Basin rainforest in Cameroon, Central Africa.

Fascinated by the idea and potential of these cities, Vladimir Putin decided to open the doors of Russia to the project to implement these original infrastructures on its vast lands, from west to east along the legendary Trans-Siberian Railway. He summoned his council of experts and spoke to them enthusiastically about LE PAPILLON SOURCE project. He explained how these cities, as transit points, offered an innovative and responsible vision of the world of tomorrow, focused on cooperation, nature preservation, and the balance between humans and their environment.

The experts were initially perplexed, but Vladimir Putin's charisma and determination quickly convinced them. They understood that this initiative could open new perspectives for evolution in Russia and the world.

Thus, the preparations began. An international team of architects, ecologists, and sustainable development experts was assembled through transnational events of intellectual and artistic cooperation to carry out this audacious endeavor. They embarked on the design, promotion, and construction of a showcase city named HYPERBOREA, located between Moscow and Perm in Russia. It drew inspiration in part from other showcase cities around the world, such as ATLAS city in Morocco, the city of NGOMPEM in Cameroon, HELIOS city in Greece, and the NEW ATLANTIS in France.

Vladimir Putin himself personally involved in the project. He worked closely with Russian experts and students, providing support and his vision at every step of the process. His determination and enthusiasm were contagious, and soon, the whole of Russia fully invested in this ambitious project.

Finally, HYPERBOREA city was inaugurated, resplendent with its magic and beauty. Russian residents, as well as visitors from around the world, flocked to discover this true jewel of the North, a jewel of humanity's cooperation and environmental respect.

HYPERBOREA quickly became a hub for cultural, scientific, and spiritual exchange. People from all walks of life came to immerse themselves in the vibrant and highly inspiring atmosphere of the city and learn from the values of cooperation and nature preservation that prevailed there.

Vladimir Putin applauded this bold decision. He knew that true power resided in cooperation between nations, in the preservation of nature, and in the balance between humans and their environment.

Thus, thanks to LE PAPILLON SOURCE project, Vladimir Putin ushered in a new era in Russia and the world. His dream of seeing his country flourish in cooperation, intellectual and spiritual development, and respect for nature had become a reality.

And the radiance of LE PAPILLON SOURCE continued to inspire and transform hearts, bringing a fresh breath to a world in search of peace, cooperation, harmony, and self-reconnection.
